

BUSINESS TAX

Business Tax Preparation Organizer

Organize business records, reconciliation questions, missing items, and filing-readiness for the tax year.

This page is meant to capture the business's actual facts before the return is prepared. A strong tax organizer answers: what changed, what records exist, what is still missing, and what can be explained clearly.

Field	Current information
Tax year / legal business name
DBA / EIN
Entity type / state(s) of operation
Owners / ownership changes
Accounting method, if known
Bookkeeping platform
Tax professional / preparer

What changed this year?

- ☐ Ownership, entity structure, location, or states of operation
- ☐ Employees, contractors, or new revenue streams
- ☐ Equipment, assets, loans, vehicles, or major purchases
- ☐ Closure, sale, or discontinuation of activity

Change details and dates

Business change timeline

A business year can change because of ownership, hiring, financing, equipment, property, location, or activity. Track the change date and the record that supports it.

Income and bookkeeping readiness

The most valuable tax organizer does not simply collect totals. It helps identify whether the totals are consistent, whether missing support exists, and whether the bookkeeping reflects the real business activity.

- ☐ Bookkeeping is current through year-end
- ☐ Revenue and bank deposits have been reviewed
- ☐ Payment-processor totals and information returns have been compared
- ☐ Outstanding receivables, refunds, and chargebacks are identified
- ☐ Cash income is recorded where applicable

Income reconciliation

Income source	Books total	Processor / information return	Difference	Resolved?

Identify; do not force

A difference is a question to investigate. Do not change records merely to match another statement without understanding timing, fees, refunds, duplicates, or other causes.

Reconciliation questions

Common reasons totals differ

- ☐ Timing differences
- ☐ Payment processor fees or refunds
- ☐ Chargebacks or duplicate entries
- ☐ Gross-versus-net reporting
- ☐ Transfer or intercompany activity
- ☐ Period or cutoff differences

Expense organization

This is not a classification exercise alone. It is a record-organization exercise. The goal is to identify where support exists, what questions remain, and what should be discussed with the preparer.

Category	Bookkeeping complete?	Supporting records?	Question
Advertising / software
Office / supplies
Professional services / insurance
Rent / utilities
Travel / meals / vehicle
Contractors / payroll
Taxes / licenses / repairs
Equipment / other

Owner activity

Activity	Records complete?	Amount reviewed?	Question
Owner-paid expenses / reimbursements
Owner contributions
Owner distributions / draws

Questions to flag

- ☐ Personal and business activity mixed together
- ☐ Large unusual purchase or expense
- ☐ Missing receipt or source support
- ☐ Duplicate or unclear vendor entry
- ☐ Owner activity not recorded separately

People, assets, and other records

A business tax organizer becomes more useful when it captures not only accounts, but also the people and assets that drive activity and reporting.

Contractors

Contractor	W-9 on file	Payments reviewed	1099 review needed

Employees and payroll

Payroll item	Complete?	Source available?	Notes
Payroll summaries and filings
Year-end payroll reports
Contractor payments and forms
Employee benefits or compensation records

Assets and equipment

Asset	Date acquired	Cost	Business use	Supporting record

Other record areas

☐	Vehicles or mileage records
☐	Inventory records
☐	Loans and financing statements
☐	Insurance records and estimated tax payments
☐	Depreciation or basis information

No tax determination

Record facts and locate support. Classification, deductibility, depreciation, reporting, and other tax treatment must be determined separately.

Tax records and correspondence

Before preparing for filing, confirm you have the full set of documents that explain the year: returns, filings, notices, and the actions taken in response.

- ☐
- Prior-year return and supporting schedules
- ☐
- Depreciation schedules, if applicable
- ☐
- Estimated-tax and extension payments
- ☐
- State and local filings
- ☐
- Payroll filings
- ☐
- Sales-tax filings, where applicable

Notice tracker

Agency	Notice date	Deadline	Issue	Status

Preserve the full history
Keep the notice, the delivery date or envelope when relevant, the response, payment confirmation, and related correspondence together. The paper trail matters.

Questions about filings or correspondence

Final readiness

A final business tax organizer is not a filing list. It is a readiness checklist for the preparer and the owner.

- ☐ Books are current and income differences are identified
- ☐ Expense support and owner activity are organized
- ☐ Payroll, contractor, asset, vehicle, inventory, and loan records are reviewed
- ☐ Prior returns, payments, filings, and notices are available
- ☐ Missing items and preparation questions are documented
- ☐ Secure sharing method is confirmed

Missing-items tracker

Missing item	Owner / issuer	Requested	Due	Status

Questions for preparation

Questions and facts to review

After filing

- ☐ Retain the return and supporting schedules
- ☐ Note carryforward and recurring items
- ☐ Improve next-year bookkeeping and calendar applicable deadlines

Security reminder

Do not send EIN records, banking information, returns, identity documents, payroll records, or other sensitive information through an unsecured contact form or ordinary email. Use only an approved secure method when instructed.

Next step

Need help organizing business tax preparation? Schedule a consultation at getalchemize.com.

This organizer provides general record-preparation guidance. It does not make tax determinations, guarantee an outcome, or replace advice based on the business's facts, entity, jurisdictions, and current law.